MULE ASSISTED IN KILLING A COYOTE

At the Kluchy ranch, south of Winnemucca, this morning, a rabid coyote attacked "Maudie," the mule, hitched to a buggy. But Maudie saw it first and the coyote's advances were met with a well-aimed kick that knocked it several feet and left it stunned. Before it could recover itself J. Deas secured a shotgun and dispatched the brute at the first shot.—Silver State.

MATTHEW COONEY FALLS VICTIM TO PNEUMONIA

DECEASED WAS FOR ELEVEN YEARS A MINING MAN OF TONOPAH

Matthew Cooney of Tonopah died yesterday morning at Reno, as the result of pneumonia. He was a native of Pennsylvania and was aged 56 years. For the past 45 years he had been a miner and a prospector, starting as a boy in the anthracite collieries. He lived the greater part of his life in the west and for the past eleven years was a resident of Tonopah. For some months past he was employed as a watchman at the Nevada state insane asylum.

A daughter, Miss Mary Cooney, resides at Akron, Ohio, and he has several nieces at Butte, Mont. One of the latter is on her way to Reno to make arrangements for the funeral.

of the company, but of the general public."

Mr. Chapell said before his departure: "Before another five years shall have rolled around we will be delivering electricity in Tonopah, Goldfield and the remainder of our territory at a rate that will enable consumers to use it for heating and lighting their homes and places of business without any alteration in the present wiring system. The current will be delivered through one meter without any distinction for either heating or lighting and the cost will probably be three, or possibly two cents a kilowatt hour."

This is the important change or transformation the greatest minds of the electric world are working on today and the first portion of the continent to receive practical benefits from the improvement will be Nevada and California, according to the statement of Delos R. Chapelle, president of the Nevada-California Power company.

"The most baffling element in the production of electricity," continued Mr. Chapelle, "is the cheapening of the cost of transmission so that the force may be applied to the heating business. This has been attempted on a minor scale but without economic returns and except in isolated cases the effort has had to be abandoned. Nevertheless we are making rapid progress and the developments have already passed the laboratory stage so that I feel safe in predicting that by 1920 every home and building in Tonopah will be heated by electricity at a cost that will be far less than the present expense of heating by use of oil, coal and wood. Steam will be abolished, smoke will become a thing of the past and all classes will share in the blessing of cheap and clean fuel. The miner in his cabin can reach over to a switch on the wall at the side of his bed and in a few minutes have the temperature of his home raised to whatever he pleases. Electricity will no longer be a luxury and the use of the current will provide such a business that we expect to be well repaid for the experiments we are now making. The movement will go even further for it is our desire to make electricity universally popular by applying it to every possible use. Motor trucks will have removable batteries which can be renewed at public stations, gasoline will go out of use except for long distance trips and the housewife will have nothing to do but turn a switch to roast, bake or heat. An entire house or office building will be heated completely or one or more rooms may be warmed according to requirements. In this way the heating cost will be reduced below the present cost of steam or hot air as you have only to raise heat where heat is needed and the current can be turned off or on according to the wish of the consumer."

"This improvement can only be accomplished by the block system where one meter will be used to determine the consumption of that block or section. Then each consumer in that block will have his average consumption determined and the cost of the service apportioned. One of the heaviest and most exacting charges of electric companies today is the maintenance of the meter system and when we arrange to dispense with meters we will make a material saving in administration that will inure to the benefit of the consumer."

TAG DAY IN RENO BRINGS ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS
Over one thousand dollars were collected in Reno for the Florence Crittenton Home, as the result of tag day. Women and children paraded the streets all day, armed with the tags, and saw to it that no one escaped, and notwithstanding the fact that it rained all day, it did not interfere with the work of those who had the selling of the tags in charge.

INDIAN BOY SUBSISTS ON GRASS AND SAGE

WILLIE BOB MAKES HIS WAY ACROSS THE DESERT, EATING GRASS AND SAGE

A 16-year-old Indian boy from Round Mountain made his escape from the Stewart Institute, the Indian training school near Carson City, and walked all the way here. His name is Willie Bob. When Dr. Richards, the county physician, was called to his case, he found that the boy was suffering from lack of nutrition. He had subsisted nearly all the time of his 200-mile walk on grasses and sagebrush, which he had not digested. He is now better and will be able to return to the school, with Superintendent Royce, who was sent for to take him back. In his long journey across the desert the boy avoided his fellow tribesmen, for fear that they would report him and that he would be taken back to the ways of civilization. He promises to be a good Indian hereafter.

REWARD FOR SIXTY YEARS OF SERVICE

MILLION DOLLAR STRUCTURE TO HONOR DR. ANGELL OF UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

(By Associated Press.)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 1.—The sixty years of public service rendered by Dr. James B. Angell, president emeritus of the University of Michigan, in education, diplomacy and journalism, are to be crowned by the building in his honor of a $1,000,000 structure on the campus of the university. Into the local offices of the committee, charged with the campaign to raise the fund for the construction and endowment of the Michigan Union clubhouse, there have been pouring lately from every state in the union, and from all parts of the world, suggestions and demands that the new building be dedicated to Dr. Angell, for 44 years actual or titular head of the institution.

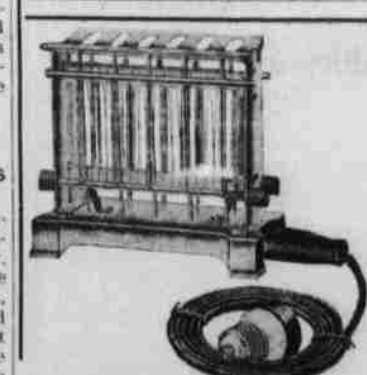

The officers of the union, which is an organization of students and alumni, received the suggestion cordially when first it was made and now that the communications from former students take on a note of insistence to the same effect, it is said, the realization of the building project will be accompanied by the materialization of the Angell memorial. The general tenor of the alumni suggestions is that alumni, undergraduates, professors and citizens generally may express in the million dollar union home their regard for the man who has been their guide and mentor for nearly half a century.

"It is peculiarly appropriate that the Michigan union home for students and alumni should be built and maintained in the nature of a memorial to Dr. Angell, because it is to embody the newest idea in education propounded by the oldest educator," said Dean Henry M. Bates of the law department, general chairman of the union campaign committee. "The union is devoted to a work which Dr. Angell always had at heart—the complete democratization of the students of a great university, and the socialization of all the forces of the university—faculty, undergraduate, alumni and citizen, to the end of higher and more effective service to the commonwealth and mankind."

Dr. Angell now is in his eighty-seventh year. Since 1908 he has been relieved of the burden of active administration of the presidency of the University of Michigan, retiring at his own request about the same time his distinguished associates in the educational world of the nation—Dr. Charles W. Eliot of Harvard and Cyrus K. Northrup of Minnesota—laid down the reins of their institutions. One of the buildings devoted to the uses of the women of the university—Sarah Caswell Angell hall—is a memorial to his wife.

It is said that over 10,000,000 women in this country shop daily, 90 per cent of whom are influenced through advertising to buy a certain article or go to a certain store; hence when a small dealer tells you that advertising doesn't pay, you will find, nine times out of ten, that not only his advertising but his store methods are faulty. He is, very likely, a spasmodic advertiser. He is operating without any particular plan or policy. In short, he is a hot and cold proposition, pretty much like the old rooster in the snow, standing first on one foot, then on the other, trying to avoid getting cold feet, where if he used both feet at the same time, he would get to some place where there wasn't any snow. BUTLER THEATER

Mary Pickford, the highest salaried motion picture star in the world, departs from her usual style of screen interpretation in the Famous Players five-reel production, "Mistress Nell," the internationally famous drama by George C. Hazelton which will be shown at the Butler this evening. Nell Gwyn, the character portrayed by "Little Mary," is one of the greatest and sweetest of history's heroines. To her fame is added by the astonishing success of the drama of which she is the central character, and in the photoplay version of which Miss Pickford even further extends the dramatic appeal of the captivating story. The character offers Miss Pickford many interesting opportunities to prove her wonderful versatility as a screen actress, inasmuch as the portrayal involves not only the delineation of Nell, as England's favorite actress, but also that of the disguised messenger who is supposed to carry word of King Charles' disaster to another crown. No detail has been spared in the mounting of this interesting feature and a cast of unusual excellence surrounds Miss Pickford. The picture has played to crowded houses wherever it has been shown. The preliminary reel will be Pathe Weekly. Tomorrow, "Fine Feathers," a World Film feature, and a Charlie Chaplin one-reel Keystone comedy, "The New Professor." Remember "The Christian" on October 6th.—Adv.
